Thank you is not enough.

On Dec. 1, 2013, my life changed dramatically and probably forever. I work at the Beachburg Arena. My Sunday started out very normal. I reach the arena by 7AM and begin opening up. I had worked public skating the night before, cleaned up, set the alarms and went home. Sunday morning when I put the key in the lock, I realized that the alarms had been turned off. I also, at this time, noticed Kyla's car at the rear of the arena. Kyla would sleep at the arena on occasion. This was my advice because I did not want her to drink & drive. So I believed she was asleep in the refs room at the back. I did not go into the room. I thought I would wake her up just before the refs arrived. I took the Lamborghini out on the ice to do the final flood. As I drove by the penalty box I saw my friend Kyla, sitting on the floor. I jumped off the machine, jumped over the boards, went into penalty box. I took vitals, best I could then ran to call 911. I came back to the box to make sure I hadn't made a mistake. Everything at this time is still a blur to me.
